

Over-Eating Worse Than Starvation

Seven Deaths Arise From This Cause To One Of Lack Of Food

A Trial Package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Sent Free.

An English medical observer claims that for one death to starvation there are seven from over-eating.

His investigation is appalling and leads one to believe that among the Anglo-Saxon race over-eating is a national crime.

This investigation proves over-eating to be the cause in ten cases out of twelve of dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach trouble.

These diseases bring on decay and decline of the other organs and death ensues because of an inability of the system to furnish proper nourishment to the dying and afflicted parts.

When one over-eats, one exhausts the gastric fluids, tarrows undigested food into the intestines where it creates poison and germ life and is finally absorbed in a putrid state or thrown from the system in a decaying form.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will overcome the ill effects of gluttony and irregular eating. They will digest an abnormal amount of food and will leave the stomach until everything has been digested.

A single one-grain ingredient of these tablets will digest 3,000 grains of food and in this proportion is seen how even gluttony can be overcome or at least its most harmful effects removed.

Make up your mind to try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets for one week. Take a tablet after each meal and upon retiring at night. Every druggist carries them in stock; price 25c. If you have a druggist friend ask his opinion. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package free by mail. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

AT THE AUDITORIUM.

New Vaudeville and Motion Pictures.

The midweek change of bill at the Auditorium had well filled houses to witness its offerings on Thursday, and much to bring out applause was found in the three new numbers that furnished the turns.

Sam Statzer is a black-face comedian of good voice and a good selection of jokes while Davenport & Francis have a comedy singing and talking sketch in which their tuneful voices are heard to great advantage.

Taylor & Fabian, a song and dance duo, have a pretty offering that is all to the good, and there is a manifest welcome to Tuley, Richmond, who, who continue for the week of the week to produce their laughable sketch, "The Actor and the Critic." The bill as a whole is one that furnishes pleasing entertainment for the patrons of the Auditorium.

MONUMENT TO GENERAL SEDGWICK

For Whom Local Grand Army Post was Named—Prominent Leader at Battle of Gettysburg.

The part that was taken by Connecticut troops in the battle of Gettysburg in 1863 will be a topic of great interest through the year on account of the equestrian statue that is to be erected on the battlefield in honor of Gen. John Sedgwick by order of the general assembly. There will be particular interest here in this movement, inasmuch as the first Grand Army post in the state was organized here and named after General Sedgwick. Connecticut had five infantry regiments and one light battery in the battle. The infantry organizations were the Fifth, Fourteenth, Seventeenth, Twentieth and Twenty-seventh regiments and the artillery was the Second light battery. The light battery reached Gettysburg Friday, July 2, the second day of the engagement, and was ordered into position as General Sedgwick was being carried from the field. It belonged to the artillery reserve army of Gen. Robert O. Tyler. It was in position at Gettysburg fifty-six hours, but without serious loss, only three men being wounded. The Second light battery was a Fairfield county organization, being raised principally in Bridgeport.

The Fifth in the Fight.

The Fifth Connecticut reached Gettysburg July 1, and was stationed on the right of Culp's Hill during the night of July 1. It constructed strong earthworks. Its first important assignment was with the support needed by General Sedgwick. This involved the abandonment of the line of earthworks. When General Sedgwick fell back, the Fifth was ordered back to the line of works which it had constructed, but found the enemy in possession. In the effort to regain the earthworks, a number of men were wounded or captured. Chaplain Moses C. Welch was captured; Edward Fowler of Groton Company and John W. Donelson of New Britain Company, K, were wounded. On July 3 the Fifth was assigned to the support of a cavalry force. The Fifth had won imperishable distinction at Cedar Mountain August 9, 1862, and was relied on at Gettysburg for the discharge of every duty that was encountered.

Rebaptism of Blood.

The Fourteenth Connecticut, which had passed through one of the most sanguinary ordeals of the war at Fredericksburg, reached Gettysburg July 1, and the next day was stationed on the ridge at the center of the Second corps, where it assisted in repulsing Longstreet's charge on the afternoon of July 3, capturing five battleflags and 200 prisoners of war. Eight companies of the Fourteenth on the day of Longstreet's charge captured the brick barn and dwelling house of William Bliss from the enemy's sharpshooters. These buildings half a mile in front of the main line and the capture and burning of them was a brilliant feat of arms. The casualties of the Fourteenth at Gettysburg, from this part of the state, were:

Company E—Walter F. Standish of Sprague, killed; Second Lieut. Frederick E. Shaik of Norwich, Isaac C. Barrow of Yarmouth, Frank Debo of Putnam, Michael McDermott of Killingly and James Riley of Middletown, wounded.

Company F—Second Lieut. John A. Tibbitts of New London, wounded.

Company H—Second Lieut. Frank E. Stoughton of Vernon, Thomas W.

JUDGE BALDWIN WILL SPEAK IN NORWICH.

Ex-Chief Justice of the Supreme Court to Give Address on Seal of Connecticut.

Hon. Simeon E. Baldwin, ex-chief justice of the supreme court of errors of Connecticut, is to read the paper at the winter meeting of the New London County Historical society. The meeting is to be held in Norwich on Thursday, Feb. 17.

Justice Baldwin will have as his subject The Seal of Connecticut. Justice Baldwin has for years been recognized as one of the leading jurists in New England. As such he is eminently qualified to speak on such a subject, and the historical society adds to its programme in securing him.

The remainder of the programme has not been made up as yet. There will be no other paper, but there are other numbers, including an address of welcome. President Ernest E. Rogers of New London will preside at the meeting.

There will be the usual business session, followed by the open session, at which the paper will be presented. A large audience is expected.

Reeves Regains Lead.

At the weekly meeting of the West Side pinocle club tournament S. H. Reeves succeeded in regaining first place and J. Jordan who was second last, went back to second again. The scores: Reeves 41,795, J. Jordan 41,620, Peckham 41,365, Lewis 40,540, O'Neill 39,845, Cobb 39,830, Bailey 39,530, Peoria 39,140, A. Jordan 37,975, Rawson 35,780, Dibble 35,625, Tetraault 35,390.

Senate Votes Pensions.

The senate has passed the following Connecticut pension bills, all of which have already passed the house: In behalf of Henry E. Silcox of Norwich, Company H, First Connecticut Heavy artillery, at $24 per month; in behalf of Mary A. Hough of Norwich, widow of John H. Hough, Company A, First Connecticut cavalry, at $20 per month.

Stomach Dead Man Still Lives

People who suffer from sour stomach, fermentation of food, distress after eating and indigestion, and seek relief in large chunks of artificial digestors, are killing their stomachs by inaction just as surely as the victim of morphine is deadening and injuring beyond repair every nerve in his body.

What the stomach of every sufferer from indigestion needs is a good prescription that will build up his stomach, put strength, energy and elasticity into it, and make it sturdy enough to digest a hearty meal without artificial aid.

The best prescription for indigestion ever written is sold by druggists everywhere and by The Lee & Osgood Co., and is rigidly guaranteed to build up the stomach and cure indigestion, or money back.

This prescription is named M-J-O-N-A, and is sold in small tablet form in large boxes, for only 50 cents. Remember the name M-J-O-N-A—stomach tablets. They never fail. They contain ingredients that give quick relief (other than strong digestors), but they are compounded for the purpose of making the stomach strong and energetic enough to do its work without the aid of harmful drugs.

Carnage in the Seventeenth.

The Seventeenth Connecticut, which was recruited in Fairfield county and commanded by Col. William H. Noble of Bridgeport, reached Gettysburg during the fiercest part of the first day's engagement and was placed on the extreme right. It was struck at Cemetery hill by an overwhelming force under General Gordon. It was at this point that most of the thirty-nine men killed in the three days' engagement lost their lives. The whole number of killed, wounded and missing was 198. The Seventeenth belonged to the Eleventh corps and was stationed at Cemetery hill during the last two days of the battle. At Chancellorsville, which was fought May 2, 1863, two months before Gettysburg, the Seventeenth lost 120 killed, wounded and missing, including Lieut.-Col. Charles Walter, who was instantly killed. The carnage at Gettysburg was far more disastrous than at Chancellorsville.

The losses of the Seventeenth Connecticut at Gettysburg, given in detail, show that the battle was one of the severest of the war in which Connecticut troops participated. The state monument, erected in honor of the Seventeenth, occupies an eligible site on Cemetery ridge, and is a deserved tribute to the men who fell in that sanguinary encounter.

The Twentieth Regiment.

The Twentieth Connecticut, which had lost eighty-five men in killed and wounded at Chancellorsville, was in the Twelfth corps at Gettysburg, which occupied the right of the line at Culp's Hill, under General Williams, holding Ewell's corps at bay for seven hours. The loss of the regiment was five killed and twenty-six wounded.

The Twenty-seventh Connecticut, which began its career as a nine months' regiment at Fredericksburg, suffering disastrously in that engagement, went into the battle of Gettysburg with seventy-five men. That was all that could be mustered for duty, when the regiment formed for the charge at the edge of the wheat field, July 2. It was in the main line a few yards left of the position attacked by the confederates in the last charge made against the union troops. The regiment lost thirty men in killed and wounded.

Sedgwick Equestrian Statue.

Governor Weeks is ex-officio a member of the commission having in charge the erection of the equestrian statue that is to be placed on the battlefield at Gettysburg in honor of General Sedgwick. This distinguished major general from Connecticut graduated at West Point in 1837, in the same class with Major Gen. Henry W. Benham. He served in the Mexican war and was made lieutenant colonel of the 1st cavalry, U. S. Army, in 1861. He was appointed colonel U. S. A. and major general of volunteers, April 25, 1861. He was wounded at Antietam, September 17, 1862, and was killed in the battle of Spotsylvania, May 2, 1864.

The members of the commission are Charles H. Pine of Ansonia, Charles F. Linsley of Meriden, Elsie J. Steele of Torrington, in place of O. R. Fyler, deceased; Dwight C. Kilbourn of Litchfield, and the Rev. Dr. Rockwell.

EVIDENCE COMPLETED IN JEWETT VS. MORAN SUIT.

Arguments Are to Be Heard by Judge Williams on Monday, the 21st.

The case of Mary Jewett vs. Sarah Moran and others was completed, so far as the evidence is concerned, on Thursday afternoon, nearly the entire day being occupied, so that there was no time for arguments which it had been thought could be completed also. It was decided that the arguments would be heard later, and it was settled that they should be made on Monday afternoon, Feb. 21.

At the opening of court Thursday morning the cross examination of Hugh Blackledge was completed.

W. Trumbull Whitmarsh of Hallowell was next called and testified to driving a two-horse team through the driveway after the bricks had been taken away. He showed a picture of the team and himself and it was added to the many exhibits. Michael Moran testified to removing the brick in the night of Feb. 21, and that he had been called to make it better.

Walter H. Woodworth, the architect, was next called, and was on the stand for some time in his testimony for the defense, being the last witness for the defense.

Attorney William H. Shields was then called by Attorney Perkins relative to the conversations he had with the several witnesses in the case in regard to the right of way and the cleaning up of it. He denied saying anything to any of them which could be construed as meaning that they could in any way do the work covered by the injunction, stating that that must be strictly respected. Clerk G. E. Parsons was called and testified that among those who testified before Judge Roraback in the hearing in June, 1907, was Hugh Blackledge.

The completed testimony and adjournment was taken at 2 o'clock until this morning at 10 o'clock for short calendar business, at which session Judge Gardner Greene will preside, it being his initial direction of the court.

HAILE CLUB MEETING.

Cooking Class to Be Started Next Week—Suppers Given Up During Lent.

At the Haile club on Thursday evening the regular monthly business meeting was held, at which it was announced that the Wednesday evening dinner would be discontinued during Lent, but a cooking class was to be started next week under the instruction of Madame Saunier. Other items of business were transacted, and a number of names were added to the hospitality committee of ten. This makes it of such a size that five will be selected for each Sunday afternoon tea without bringing the turn of any one member too often. The new members added were Mrs. K. Stanley Lawler, Mrs. Luella Matthews, Mrs. Juliet Beasley, Mrs. E. G. Baker, Miss Nellie Crowe, Miss Jennie Kimball, Winifred MacAdam, Mrs. Frank Kromer, Miss Carrie Parsons, Miss Lida Caley and Miss Mary Sheridan.

YANTIC HAPPENINGS.

Warning Against Gypsy Moth—Three Table Whist—Services at Grace Church.

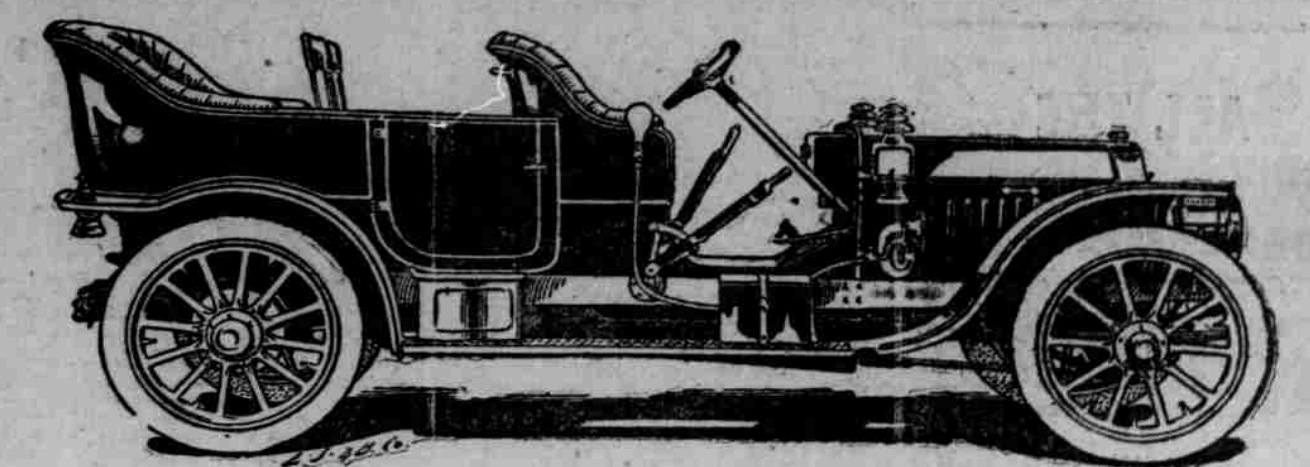

The gypsy moth warning issued by the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station from New Haven and posted here reads as follows:

The caterpillars devour the foliage of fruit, shade trees and forest trees, including coniferous trees, often killing them. Other kinds of vegetables are often attacked.

It has done incalculable damage in Massachusetts during the last twenty years. A small colony was discovered in Stonington in 1904 which by careful work has been nearly exterminated.

AGENTS FOR NEW LONDON AND WINDHAM COUNTIES.

In December, 1909, a large infection was found in the village of Wallingford, and vigorous action is now being taken against it.

Eggs hatch about May 1 and the caterpillars feed upon the trees until July. When young they descend upon threads and may be carried to new places by trains, carriages, autos or any passing vehicle. When nearly mature the caterpillars feed at night, hide under rubbish during the day and crawl about in going from tree to tree. Chrysalids may be found under fence rails and in holes in trees. The adults appear late in July, the male flying by day and the female resting on the trunks of trees. The eggs are laid on trees, usually on trunks or under the side of the large branches.

Destroy eggs by soaking egg masses in cresote oil.

Band trees with burlap and crush caterpillars found under bands in June.

Spray the foliage with arsenate of lead (five pounds in fifty gallons of water).

It is a violation of the law to transport living specimens.

Persons finding insects or egg masses resembling the gypsy moth are asked to kill the specimens by dipping them into alcohol or gasoline and send them for identification to W. E. Britton, State Entomologist.

Fortnightly Whist Club Meets.

Mrs. Lena Chivers entertained the Fortnightly Whist club Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Jabez Bailey. Three tables of whist were played. The lady's first prize, a beltin, was awarded Mrs. Howard Bishop, and the consolation to Miss Elizabeth Marsden. The gentleman's first prize, a memorandum, was taken by Howard Bishop, and the consolation by H. S. Ford. A dainty refreshment was served by the hostess. There will be no meetings during Lent.

A Boxborough farmer was driving a cow past J. William Frink's Tuesday afternoon and letting his horse travel ahead of him when the cow became frightened at some passing school children and hit the wagon in such a manner as to upset it and knock the horse off its feet. The man was some time getting his horse and wagon straightened out to return home.

The gutters around the village are in a poor condition on account of the recent storm.

There were two services held in Grace church Ash Wednesday—morning prayer at 10 a. m. and evening service at 7.30 p. m.

Washburn-Crosby Company Tops High Elevator with "Gold Medal" Beacon.

In a more superstitious age when a legend flashed forth against the sky as it did last night in incandescent letters over the West Side milling district, the people would have bowed down in awe and accepted it as a command.

In erecting an electric sign over its concrete arm elevator on the river front the Washburn-Crosby company has created a suggestive picture that is likely to burn itself on the memory when once seen, the words "Gold Medal Flour" in eight-foot letters, outlined in the dark with tungsten incandescent electric light globes.

Highest in the World.

After first erecting the highest concrete elevator in the world, an advertisement which is effective in the daytime because of the towering proportion of the building, the Washburn-Crosby company has supplemented it with a sign to be read at night when the building is invisible. This sign is probably the loftiest of its kind in the world.

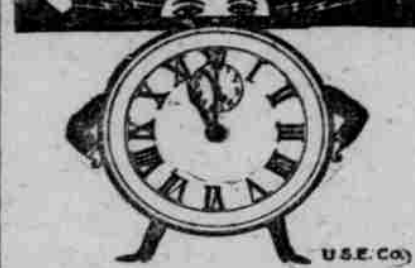

It required the services of a steel erection company six weeks to erect the sign, which is in reality a double sign, one-half at either end of the top of the elevator, easily read from both up and down river. From either direction the glowing words will stand out with startling distinctiveness, and they are high enough to be distinguished from practically all points of the compass.

Made of Steel.

The frames of the two signs are made of structural steel. The letters of the three words, each of which has a line to itself, are constructed of galvanized iron. Little troughs were built to hold the lamps which outline the letters after dark. It took just 1,500 of the tungsten globes to complete the three words, and the effect of the light from these powerful lamps is unique.

The signs stand so high in the air that their lights are not dimmed by the reflection of the illumination in the city below. Current for the lamps comes from the lighting plant of the Washburn-Crosby company, which is used to illuminate its group of mills. As the new device is designed particularly for its night effects, the electricity is turned out at dusk and is not turned off until midnight.
